The Grand Army Parade at Washington.

Fifty Thousand Veterans on Historic Pennsylvania Avenue.

Scenes of Patriotic Enthusiasm Al most Without Parallel

Vice-President Morton Reviews the Mare ing Hosts-Incidents of the Greatest Day in the Grand Army's History.

By Telegraph to The Times. Washington, Sept. 20. —[By the Ascociated Press.] The feature in today's proceedings of the Grand Army reunion was the parade of veterans. In the early morning the weather was mild and hazy. Later the sun came out, shedding a genial warmth, but the sky soon clouded over and a cold wind mad soon clouded over and a cold wind made it uncomfortable in exposed places. The hour set for starting the parade was 9:30 a.m., and long before that time great crowds had lined up against the wire cables stretching outward along the sides of broad Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol building. various veterans' posts formed at their headquarters and marched to the positions assigned them on diagonal streets tions assigned them on diagonal streets on each side of Pennsylvania avenue, beginning at the west froat of the Capitol. The Illinois posts, coming from the State in which the order was first organized, had the place of honor at the head of the line next to the general officers, and the Wisconsin posts, came second. next to the general officers, and the Wisconsin posts came second. So in due order through the dense lines of thousands of people, who lined the pavements and side streets, past buildings lavishly decorated with fluttering banners, festoons of flags and streamers; cheered on by the fresh voices of hundreds of school children singing patriotic airs, the grizzled veteraus who, twenty-seven years ago, occupied two triotic airs, the grizzled veterans who, twenty-seven years ago, occupied two days in passing in review along the grand national avenue, moved today with thinned ranks, whose numbers did not preclude the completion of the journey within a single day. Then, over rough cobblestones, they marched as members of the greatest of modern armies, thred, dusty, travel-stained, war-worn, but with flerce exultation and pride born of knowledge of their deeds and accomplishments. Today, over a smooth asplishments. Today, over a smooth as-phalt pavement, they marched again, still proud that they had been memphait pavement, they marched again, still proud that they had been members of that great army; but in the years which have thinned their ranks the fierce war spirit has died away and left little behind but feelings of joy and good will to all men. In their grizzled locks and reminiscent faces one could read recognition of the fact that it was the last time many of them would see the National Capitol. So it was they decided to make the parade the greatest feature of the encampment, knowing it was a coincidence which could never be repeated. On the lawn adjoining the south wing of the Treasury building, on a large covered stand, named in honor of Lincoln, were placed 800 school girls, so arranged in red, white and blue dresses as to produce a living star spangled bers the ing, and apparently every available foot of space from which a view could be had was occupied. The great crowd was an enthusiastic one, and cheered the soldiers again and again.

Vice-President Morton arrived about 10 otclock, accompanied by Secretary and Mrs. Charles Foster and daughter, Atty. Gen. Miller, Secretary and Mrs. Noble and the Misses Halstead, Mrs. Rusk and daughter, Secretary Tax. Noble and the Misses Halstead, Mrs. Rusk and daughter, Secretary Tracy and daughter, Mrs. Wilmerding, Mrs. John W. Foster and Postmaster-General Wanamaker. Among the other honored guests who had seats in the Vice-President's stand were Gen. and Mrs. Schofield, Assistant Secretary Grant, Gen. and Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Logan and Mrs. John A. Logan, Jr. It was nearly 11 o'clock when the column, headed by the citizen's Iodal committee mounted, citizen's local committee mounted turned into Fifteenth street, under the reviewing stand, and from that time there was hardly a break in the lines. The Vice-President stood at the front of the platform, and as the several departments dipped colors in passing he returned the salute by lifting his hat. Gen. Palmer, Commander-in-Chief, was heartlly cheered as he passed, as were also ex-President Hayes, who marched with his post, Gen. O. O. Howard and Secretary Rusk as he rode with the staff commanders of the Department of Wisconsin. Commander-in-Chief Palmer, as he reached the stand, dismounted and, standing between two mounted brass field pieces, reviewed the marching column.

FEATURES OF THE PARADE. The Nineteenth Illinois Veteran Club armed with muskets and headed by a armed with muskets and headed by a fife and drum corps, was especially no-ticed, as also was Columbia Post. had a stuffed goose perched high on a pole. The Keystone State was the banner State in the procession in numbers. There probably were 10,000 of her veterans in line, and it took an hour and a half for them to pass by one point. They had enough worn battle flags and banners to decorate every armory in the State.

The first negro company was Lewis Post. The members were headed by the post band and carried themselves well. Other colored troops were seen later, coming along at intervals. "The daughter of the regiment" walked in front of a line of Ohloans, a young Buckeye girl, bright and attractive in a dark bine frock trimmed with gold lace. The New York city and Brooklyn posts led the New York detachment and no finer looking body of men were seen here in any procession. The feature of New Jersey displayed was a good sized mosquito perched on a keg labelled "whisky," into which he was trying to thrust his bill. Maine and California had small numbers in line and quickly passed. When a Michigan post passed, for the first time during the day the popular "Boom de ay" was heard. Colored and Wyoming marched together, headed by a small burro bestriden by a small boy, a Leadville band and a fawa following, behind which came several hundred well-preserved, hardylooking men from the Rockies.

Iowa's brigade looked happy and contented as it turned up the avenue, its individual members carrying long green corn-stalks musket fashion against their shoulders. They sang as they walked, "Marching Through Georgia," and so the procession continued until evening —department after department, ponder the procession continued until evening after post, hearty men and men on crutches, bands, drum corps, bright fresh clothes, stained and ragged battle flags, cheers, clapping hands, waving handkerchiefs, swelling bosoms, out-flowing eyes, twitching libs which

abor Riots at Sidney, N. S. W.—The Situa STONET (N. S. W.,) Sept. 20.-|By Cable and Associated Press. A crowd numbering 6000 persons today sent a deputation to Sir G. R. Dibbs, Prime Minister and Colonial Secretaey of New South Wales, to demand the release of the labor agitators who were arrested in connection with the strike at the Broken Hill mine. The Prime Minister refused to see the deputation until to-morrow morning. When the crowd were informed of this they were highly incensed, and under the leadership of the more turbulent members they rushed to the House of Parliament and tried to

to the House of Parliament and tried to effect an entrance. They would have been successful had they not been repulsed by armed police.

Most intense excitement prevailed throughout the city and the rioters were continually gaining fresh accessions to their body from the lawless element. Many threats of violence were made and it was thought highly probable the mob would attempt the release of the prisoners from the jail in which they are confined. Orders were issued to hold the military in readiness for any service they might be called upon to perform.

IRISH TENANTS PAY RENT.

Dublin, Sept. 20.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] There is renewed excitement everywhere in Dublin in consequence of the resumption of the eviction of tenants who are in arrears for rent. In county Clare the sheriff proceeded yesterday with a large force of police, ready to dispossess a delinquent tenant, but instead of resistance the tenant was ready to pay back-rent. At the next house the sheriff found the same condition of affairs. The result of the raid was that rents were raid and rose of the tenant vere paid and none of the tenants

Freeman's Journal (anti-Parnellite), declared that the attempted evictions were the result of the landlords' desire to discredit the home rule government.

Low, Sandy Hook (N. J.,) Sept. 20.-The medical summary of the camp shows one death from cholera, one case under treatment and one death from peritonitis. Dr. Hamilton sent Dr. Jenkins a message last night announc-ing the death from cholera, and requesting that a tug be sent immediately to re-move the body to Swinburne Island. The boat did not come until after 11 o'clock this morning, and Dr. Hamilton received no response to his telegram He was very indignant at what he terms Dr. Jenkins's discourtesy.

The feeling is growing that a clash sooner or later will take place, not so much between the Federal and State much between the Federal and State-authorities as between Dr. Jenkins and ex-Surgeon General Hamilton. Dr. Jenkins has stated that he thinks it very injudicious for Dr. Hamilton to announce cholera in Camp Low unless he had absolute proof, which could only be obtained by a bacteriological exam-ination. Over a Hundred Buildings, Including ore of Hotels, Burned at Rock-away Beach, N. Y.-Losses May Reach $2,000,000.

ROCKAWAY BEACH (N. Y.,) Sept. 20.—
[By the Associated Press.] The largest conflagration that ever occurred on the Long Island coast destroyed over 100 frame buildings here today and left about 160 acres a mass of ruins. The resort was completely wiped out. The fire broke out about 12:25 this afternoon in the Seaside Museum. A high wind carried the flames across Seaside avenue. Within five minutes after the flames broke through the roof of the museum, the fire was roaring on both sides of the avenue and, fanned by the wind, began to eat its way in all direc-tions. In quick succession the flames attacked hotels along the beach and on both sides of Seaside avenue.

In yain, the few residents of the beach, aided by boatmen, battled with the flames. Their efforts were thrown away. Aid was summoned, but its arrival made little difference. About 6:30 p.m. the flames, after having practically burned themselves out for want of immediate material upon which to feed, were brought under control, but the fire was still burning brightly at midnight in the center of the burned district. How the flames started is unknown.

By some they are estimated at ver $2,000,000, while others do not over $2,000,000, while others do not believe the total will amount to one-quarter of that amount. There is a vast undesirable crowd present, consisting principally of ghouls, who are reaping a rich harvest from the misfortunes of the turned-out people. It is said the insurance policies will not more than half cover the losses.

An Attempt to Answer Gov. McKinley's Elwood Speech.

Democratic Success Means Annihila tion of an Industry.

Other Echoes of the Campaign-Ge Weaver Defending His War Record Before the People of the South.

Marroon (Ill.,) Sept. 20.—[By the Associated Press.] Hon. William M. Springer addressed a large audience here today. His speech was grincipally in reply to that delivered by McKinley at Elwood, last week. He

During the interval of nine months be fore starting the increased rate provided in the McKinley bill, there was an enor-mous increase in the importation of tin plates to get them into the country under mous increase in the importation of tin plates to get them into the country under the old rates and sell them at the increased rates. If the McKinley bill had taken effect on the tin plates immediately on its passage as it should have done, the Government would have received over $10,000,000 more revenue than it did from these importations. The people were compelled to buy at the supposed increased price, however, and this $10,000,000 was net profit to the tin plate importers and jobbers. After working to their utmost capacity for the time to meet the enormous demand from the United States the Welsh mills, after June. 1891, were obliged to shut down for a time in order that consumption might catch up with production. The Republicans immediately set up the claim that the McKinley bill had caused the Welsh mills to shu, down and the industry be transferred to this country. Thus were history and facts perverted to deceive our people.

The manufacture of tin plates in this country is conceded by all to be an unprofitable industry, which cannot exist without a government bounty or a high protective tariff. Either the Government or the consumers of tin plates must pay $16,000,000 every year more than-is otherwise required government bounty or a high protective tariff. Either the Government or the consumers of tin plates must pay $18,000,000 every year more than is otherwise required in order to have our annual supply of tin plates made here. The report of the Government agent for the fiscal year ended June last shows the output of tin and terne plates in this country for that year to be 13,240,830 pounds. This is less than 2 per cent. of the amount consumed in the same period. We were told when the McKinley bill was pending that within one year from its passage we would make here all the plates we We were told when the McKinley bill was pending that within one year from its pass-age we would make here all the plates we could consume. According to the 'official report, only about a quarter of the amount produced here was tin plates, the other three-fourths being terne plates, which are coated with lead and tin and used for roof-coated with lead and the and used for rooting purposes only, and even this meagre output of less than 2 per cent. was not altogether an American production.

Springer went on to state that the importation of steel sheets, or "black plates," used in manufacture of tin plates since the passage of the McKinplates," used in manufacture of tin plates since the passage of the McKiniey bill, began to increase almost correspondingly with the increased production of tin and terne plates. He continued:

The agent of the Treasury Department claimed that for the last quarter of the last quarter of the last plates inscal year 5,000,000 pounds of "black plates" were made in the United States, but where made and whether used in the manufacture of tin plates does not appear, but it does appear that importations for that quarter were over 4,000,000 pounds, and from this it is apparent that the greater amount of tin and terne plates produced in the United States, was made by using imported "black plates." The part performed in America was in a large measure a mere dipping process. The metals were mostly fuported. It was stated in a circular recently issued by the Taylor Company of Philadelphia that by wising the latest improved Welsh dipping pot two boys can dip seventy boxes, of tin daily. If this is true, twelve boys, by working an entire year, could have dipped the entire, American production for the fiscal year, and at the same ratio it would only require 642 boys to dip the entire amount required in the United States. Neither the dipping boys nor the men who box the plates are skilled laborers and are hired at the lowest prices for unskilled labor, but no matter how many persons are engaged in industry here during the past year, it is evident that the American people who are subjected to the tax of $16,000,000 a year for building up the fin-plate industry paid very dear for the luxury.

Springer asserted that it was not in-rate was largely lobbied through by the American Corrugated Roofing Company, which wished to drive the tin roofers out of the field and has succeeded. Mr. Springer concluded as follows:

The Democratic party, if clothed with power by the people, will speedily put an end to this political partnership with private enterprise and restore the duty on tin plate to 1 cent per pound or put it on the free list.

Defiant Letter from the Chinese Six Companies.

They Declare That They Have Advised Their Countrymen in the United States to Refuse Obedience to the Law.

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—[By the Associated Press.] The Call tomorrow will publish a letter from the presidents of the Chinese Six Companies to Collector of Internal Revenue John C Quinn, sent in respose to an inquiry by the Collector as to whether or not it was true that the Six Companies had advised Chinese laborers not to comply with the provisions of the Chinese reg istration law passed at the last session of Congress. The presidents of the Six Companies say to the Collector that they have issued a circular advising Chinese laborers that the law is un constitutional and cannot be enforced and that they have suggested to the la-borers that they do not comply with the law. The presidents say that their circular was based upon the advice of their attorneys, and they declare that the registration law is unconstitutional and in violation of treaty rights. In support of the assertion that the aw is unconstitutional they say that it makes no distinction between Chinese who are citizens of the United States; that a citizen of the Chinese race is entitled to the same rights and privileges as those of the Caucasian race; that no law can be passed which is intended to apply to one class of people and not to another. The letter states that all laws must be equal and uniform; that Congress has equal and uniform; that Congress has no power to pass a law inflicting the penalty of deportation; that the law is against the provisions of the Constitution relating to deprivation of life, froerty and property and relating to the infliction of cruel and unusual pun-

The letter further states that Chinese now residing here who came here ur der the existing laws, are entitled to remain. The letter then declares that remain. The letter then declares that the treaty between the United States and China provides that Chinese visiting or residing in the United States shall have the same right and privileges as are enjoyed by citizens or subjects of the most favored nations. It says that while Congress has a right to abrowate or nullify a treaty. the Suabrogate or nullify a treaty, the Su-preme Court of the United States has preme Court of the United States has decreed that such abrogation or nullification must be in express terms and not by implication. the United States.

Besides giving above reasons for their belief that the Restriction Act is in viobelief that the Restriction Act is in vio-lation of the rights guaranteed both by treaty and constitution, the presidents of the Six Companies say that the Chi-nese consider that the law is unwar-ranted and unnecessary; that it is an insult to the subjects of a friendly na-tion; that it is in violation of every principle of justice, equity and fair dealing between friendly powers, and that it is an insult which is not inflicted upon citizens or subjects of any other upon citizens or subjects of any other nation. Should China pass such a law in reference to citizens of the United States, the Government and people of the United States would resent it. The presidents also assert that if the law is enforced it will subject every Chinese merchant to blackmail of the Chinese merchant to blackmail of the Chinese merchant to blackmail of the worst type; that a Chinese merchant residing in San Francisco who may desire to travel to New York may be stopped at every hamlet and be arrested on a charge of being a laborer who has not registered.

In conclusion the presidents refer to the fact that Collector Quinn in his reent letter to them said that officers of

In response to this the presidents say that their attention has not been called to any law which makes it a crime for them to advise their fellow-countrymen that they have a right to disregard laws which are in violation of the Constitution and treaty.

THE FISTIC ARENA.

Maber of Australia Knocked Out by Smith of Boston.

Twenty-five Round Battle in Which the Bean-eating Pugilist Had the Advantage from the

By Telegraph to The Times.

PORTLAND (Or..) Sept. 20.—[By the Associated Press.] Billy Smith of Boston and Billy Master of Australia fought before the Pastime Athletic Club tonight for a purse of $1000. Maber was knocked out in the twenty-fifth round. The contest, was the most exciting that the Pastime Club has yet given and was witnessed by a large crowd. Jack Dempsey was referee and announced that the affair would be a twenty-round contest.

Smith took the aggressive in the first round. He swung his right on Maber's ribs, bringing him to the floor.

In the next few rounds Smith rushed Maber against the ropes and got in ome good blows.

In the seventh round Smith tried a pivot blow, but fell short.

In the eighth round Maber was still on the defensive. From the ninth to the fourteenth round but little effective

In the fourteenth round Maber was knocked down by a right-hander on the breast. He came up groggy and just as time was called he was again knocked down.

From the fourteenth to the twenty first round Smith continued his rushes

From the fourteenth to the twenty-first round Smith continued his rushes and Maber began to show the effect of Smith's body-blows.

At the close of the twentieth round Referee Dempsey announced one more round to be fought. The twenty-first round found Smith apparently fresh while Maber seemed weak.

From the twenty-first to the twenty-fifth it was apparent that Maber was whipped, but Smith's attempts to deliver a knock-out were unavailing. Maber was so weak a light tap would send him to the floor. In the twenty-fifth round Maber went down four times, once from a pivot blow on the chest. Smith then swung his right, and landing on Maber's jaw, sent him down and out.

Dixon and Corbett Challenged New York, Sept. 20.—A local sport-ing journal received a cablegram from London today stating that Bill Baxter had issued a challenge to fight George Dixon, the colored featherweight champion, for $2500 or $5000 a and the largest purse offered for the featherweight championship.

The message also says that Charley Mitchell has deposited a forfeit of £500 and renewed his challenge to fight Jim Corbett, champion of the world, for $10,000 a side and a purse of £4000, in the Olympic Club in February. Mitchell says Corbett must fight in six months or forfeit the championship.

Effect of Pulling Fodder. [Exchange.] Exchange.]

Strlpping the leaves from the standing stalks of corn while in their best green condition is a quite common practice in some sections of the country. When properly cured and bound in bundles they make excellent white fodder, and it is generally considered that the pulling of the leaves causes no decrease in the production of grain. To test the question of loss or gain experiments pulling of the leaves causes no decrease in the production of grain. To test the question of loss or gain experiments were made on sixteen plats at the Georgia station. From one-half of each the leaves were stripped and the fodder carefully cured and dried.

The plats from which the blades were stripped yielded 28.9 bushels of shelled corn per acre. The unstripped plats gave a yield of 27.8 bushels per acre, a loss of 3.4 bushels as the result of pulling the fodder. But the yield of fodder was 270 pounds per acre, at a cost for pulling and cutting of 81 cents. In other words there was a loss equal to 190.4 pounds of corn and a gain of 270 pounds of fodder.

From the above and a similar trial preceding it the conclusion is reached that the strongest argument against the practice is the meager results in fodder compared with the amount of labor involved. The same labor employed in mowing of grass or any good forage crops, even without the use of improved machinery, would yield vastly greater results.

Mr. Culp of San'Felipe, not disheart-ened by reverses, although cramped by lack of capital and rebuffed by those who never believed the home produc-tion could equal the foreign importa-tion, has persistently grown crops of tobacco since 1858. During these thirty-three years he has never failed tobacco since 1858. During these thirty-three years he has never failed in getting a crop. People will be astonished when told his actual production had exceeded 4,460,000 pounds.

We hear of several alfalfa-growers down on the Chino ranch who have made from $150 to $175 an acre on hay this season. One man there expects before another month is over to harvest seven full crops of the grass this season.—[Pomona Progress.]

While we do not regard the danger of cholera finding its way into Los Angeles as extreme, we still think it would be visdom on the part of our city fathers to order a thorough clean-up of the city. The idea of putting off this sanitary precaution until we have the pestilence at our doors or in our very midst is short-sighted and foolhardy Nobody can tell what may happen

The dread disease may be kept away from the Atlantic seaboard by rigorous quarantine and may not invade the States beyond the Rocky Mountains at all, and yet it may overrun Mexico and be next-door neighbor to us before we have an inkling of the danger. It would be late in the day then to begin to clean up.

By all means let the Health Officer have what assistants he requires to make a house-to-house inspection, and see that all nuisances are abated. Even if there should be no visitation of cholera, the improvement in the sanitary condition of the city would well repay

And while we are looking to the back yards and alleys and cesspools, let us not overlook our water supply. There has been much complaint hitherto of the bad water furnished by the Citizens

Water Company to the residents of the result of a campaign made on this evil.

water has been somewhat improved

A portion of the supply ditch which runs through a cattle corral has been piped, and other portions have been fenced to keep cattle out of the ditch

But the water is not yet all that could be desired. It may be that if the Health Officer would make another trip or two along the line of the ditch he could suggest further improvements. Nothing is more encouraging to pestilence than impure water. The system of the Citizens' Company can never be made enfirely satisfactory until it is replaced by a new plant, but we may be able to patch it up and improve somewhat the supply of water should be a general movement against cesspools. They are dangerous at best.

and in many portions of the city, where the soil is adobe or a stiff clay that does not allow the water to soak away, they are sure to prove intolerable nuisances

Wherever it is possible for a property owner to dispense with his cesspool and connect with a sewer he ought to be obliged to do so. It might be advisable also, to build more laterals, so as to furnish facilities for many who cannot now connect, and have no other re-sovereignty has ceased to be a specialty of the States and is the prerogative of the section. The cry, "No negro domination!" seems to be sufficient. The Democrats have to fight this time for the Southern States, but will hold them. Before the war the slave States had a favorite scarcerow with which had a favorite scarecrow with which they occasionally frightened themselves and that they made the excuse for doing many things that were unreasonable and oppressive. This was the danger of servile insurrection. John Brown got his idea of the ease with which the slaves could be incited to war and destroy Southern saciety from the people of the South. He did not invent it or find it in the North. When the war began the opinion was largely held in Northern States that the Southern whites would not dare to fight, because there the people are maddened by the race question, and regardless of everything else. More than that, they have rigged a counting machine that can hold the State, no matter at all how the people vote. Is there a chance for the State to go Republican? Well, I will illustrate the extent of my conviction. I will bet you $100 to a dime that Cleveland carries the State, and if you you I will lend the money for you to bet with." It is my regretful supposition that this is all true, and yet there is no danger whatever—never was any danger—of negro civil supremacy even in the States where the negroes are in the majority. There is less danger of this than there was of servile war to any great extent. The Democratic party simply gets the usufruct of the falsification. This comes without any political controversy in the South, except latterly there has been raised the question whether the Southern Democrats are terry there has been raised the question whether the Southern Democrats are not getting too conservative. The real peril of the South is that it is under the mastery of public passion and not of public opinion. The city of Manhattan and I mean by that all the cities courage, and this army is the regular force. Bourke Cockran said at Chicago: "We are the janizaries: we shall not rebel." He added: "We are always faithful. Behold our serried ranks!" They always march to command. The bugle never blows in vain for them to line up. This New York political Democratic standing army is a perpetual organization and it belongs in three States. The influence of New York makes Connecticut doubtful. Without the city of New York the State (New York) is more Republican than New England. Without Hudson county New Jersey is as Republican as Pennsylvania. What has public opinion to do with this Manhattan imperial guard! Next to nothing. What arguments prevail with the janizaries? What principles do they care for Protection, reciprocity, national currency? Do they know anything of the rights of mem—the rights of America? Have they the national pride? Do they care so long as they take the toll at the gate of the continent, what evil befalls the Republic? It does not matter to them how rank the false pretences are so they give comfort and aid to the Democratic party. With the solid South and Manhattan the Demto the Democratic party. With the solid South and Manhattan the Dem-Presidential campaign in progress in solid south and Mannatan the Deni-ocrats only require a State or two with carrying fads in them, or corrupt in-difference, to be overcome with modey, and there is the Nation in Democratic hands. these United States. It is a curiosity in affairs that such an inquiry should be thrust upon a people at least equal to any other in facilities for correctly inhands.

The country, to the extent that it is in the hands of the Democracy, is prepared for deceiving. Take the case of the tariff resolution adopted at Chicago. It is a declaration of war upon American industry. The language is, in the most important line, precisely that of the Confederate constitution, which was made as a contract, with the British to forming themselves of their own busi ness. However, it happens that one vast section of this country has been guided for many years by considera-tions that are sentimental rather than of principle. The South is made solid and though haken, it is still a Demo the Confederate constitution, which was made as a contract with the British to recognize the Confederacy and dissolve the Union, taking their pay in free trade. It is precisely that the Democratic party backs now. The words of the substitute resolution are not those of courtesy or dignity. They are hostile, rude, barbarous. There has been an effort in several Democratic newspapers to make out that the Chicago platform is not, after all, a free trade deccratic empire—by a reminiscence the cultivation of a fanciful fear. fortunately, the race questions—and their delicacy and difficulty and danger are freely acknowledged—lend them-selves easily to the uses of the Democratic party—and that party gets the vote of the whole South without regard to the actual Issues before the people, or the opinpers to make out that the Chicago platform is not, after all, a free trade declaration; that, in fact, the plank that was reported, and not the one adopted, must be accepted as the true declaration of doctrine. We are told the reported plank was the result of deliberation and the adopted plank the expression of a hasty and passing condition, and that the grand old party should not be held too strictly accountable for a midnight; mistake. Well, why not apply the same course of reasoning to the gold plank and claim that the Democracy are for free coinage of silver? There is not any doubt that they are for free coinage, but they have said the other thing. issues before the people, or the lons of the people about business. Southern States aggregated—cou the colored people as citizens, and hold-ing their vote "limited" to Democratic uses—have enormous power, and con-centration makes their force very efcentration makes their force very effective as opposed to the widespread and very diversified interests of the North, and the liberal and independent ways of the Northern people. It is hard for the masses of men, from Maine to Washington and California to Pennsylvania, to "get together" to re-sist the impact of the South, shaken but not shattered, the solidity including all from Delaware to Texas. The con-solidated section is the one in which there has been the greatest sensitive-ness about the reserved rights of the respective States. The States have so disappeared in the sentimentality of other thing.

courage, and this army is the regular force. Bourke Cockran said at Chi-

The Boston Herald, Massachusett's Mugwump, in a column review of Mr. Blaine's letter, says: "We think he is hardly correct, however, in his statement that the Demo-cratic plank on the tariff in the party's cratic plank on the tariff in the party's national platform was not 'adopted in haste or just when the convention was adjourning.' This was exactly the way in which it was adopted, to our apprehension. It was a plank not considered in the Committee on Resolutions; it was thrown hastily into the convention after that committee had reported; it was nassed amid an excitement which was passed amid an excitement which did not give it the deliberate consider-ation that the rest of the platform reation that the rest of the platform re-ceived; it was certainly not worded as it would have been had there been more opportunity to attend to its rhetorical construction, and there is great reason to doubt if it would have had altogether the substance that was given it had the convention considered it as carefully through its committee as it had the re-through its committee as it had the re-mainder of the platform." mainder of the platform."

This is most disingenious, and, indeed, the elaborate boring of a little hole for an insignificant escape. Small objects can retreat through the little end of a horn. The fact is the tariff plank is the only one in the platform that had actual consideration before the convention. The rest was perfunctory. This was debated. The result was the Democrats expressed themselves more honestly and character-Northern States that the Southern whites would not dare to fight, because if they did they would bring down upon themselves the awful calamity of an insurrection of the blacks held in servitudel. Several Northern or national generals issued proclamations about alavery prematurely. McClellan proposed in West Virginia to put down an insurrection of slaves with an 'iron hand." He did not want the idea of servile war associated with war for the Union. Fremont issued a proclamation freeing slaves, and Gen. Hunter did likewise. Gen. Butler ascertained that slaves were "contraband of war." Lincoln had to be the moderator of extremists, civil and military, and finally, when he issued his proclamation of emancipation, exempted the territory within our military lines. The war proved that there never had been any serious danger of servile insurrection and San Domingo desolation. The old bugaboo was called San Domingo! When Lee was holding on to Petersburg during the last weeks before selves more honestly and character-istically than ever before. All the suristically than ever before. All the surrounding circumstances show this to be thoroughly true. In Mr. Cleveland's speech of acceptonce he commented on the tariff in terms aptly characterized as synonymous with the substitute resolution; and the speech was just as hard and headlong and headstrong as the resolution itself. The attempt to dodge it and claim in Connecticut and New Jersey that the Democrats are protection.

The editor of the New York Sun, who is a protectionist, and regards the Con-federate plank as "a stroke of lunacy," rings the alarts bell on the Force bill.
He wants to get away from the tariff, and he would prefer not to lavish personal praise on Cleveland. Therefore,
"no negro domination," and a thousand other Demogratic editors, seeing the blundering of the party on the material issues, second Mr. Dana's motion, and blundering of the party on the material issues, second Mr. Dana's motion, and we hear of the horrors of the Force bill, the danger of centralization, the peril of negro rule—anything, everything to get the people away from the tariff. The Alabama election showed a Southern break, and that the Democratic despotism in the solid section was tottering. There were several other serious indications of the same sort. The shouts about the Force bill were at once as shrill and franticas if black dominion was an Alpine avalanche rolling upon the people, and the Democratic party offered the only avenue of escape. The President's letter of acceptance shows the clear judgment with which he refers to the States nent with which he refers to the State ment with which he refers to the States to remedy the wrongs of inequality between citizens and communities that are well known to exist. There is an injustice in apportionment accompanied, as it is, by wholesale disfranchisement that is gigantic and insolent. The allegations and demonstrations of the Alabama election controvers show the Alabama election controversy show the Alabama election controversy show the evils that are public wrongs and perils, and the President proposes the mild, the calm and gentle remedy of a non-partisan commission, that the suffrage of the Nation may not become a sham, and the most tremendous dangers await us—reaching as they may at any time the catastrophe of a disputed Presidency. The effort to escape from the dency. The effort to escape from the

We have asked the question, if the Democrats escape from their platform in one particular, why not in another? If they pretend their tariff policy is not destructive, why not also that the free coinage of silver is to be one-of-the objects of Cleveland's administration? They are doing that very thing in they South to hold the pieces together. A journal of the force of character of the Atlanta Constitution pleads that while Cleveland is not in favor of free coinage per se he is for it as a means. The boasted conservatism of Mr. Cleveland does not bear investigation. Never before did a man run for the Presidency of the United States on so British a platform as that prepared for Cleveland at Chicago, and yet they did not succeed in keeping the rag baby out of it, and the Democratic heart beats high We have asked the question, if the

for that baby-the wildcat State for that baby—the windows process of swindling farmers and working men ever invented. The Democratic campaign of deception is a foredoomed failure. The popular intelligence condemns and crushes it. The Democratic party is playing the Sonth solid in national politics for the last time. The Force Bill foolishness will be played out with this presentation. There is movement in Missourt. There is Democratic division in Tennessee. There is a big bolt in Texas. The self-interest of Louisians cannot always be overwhelmed with a sentiment that rests on falsehood and fraudulency. Alabama will be at rest no more. There has been a gigantic effort required to hold Georgia. Both the Carolinas are shaky. More than all the people of the North, Republicans at first, have seen that the forces are at work in the South worth a thousand work in the South worth a thousand Force Bills, that will have at least fair Force Bills, that will have at least fair play. The Southern people will cure the disorder of elections for their own sake—not this time, but presently. A vote for the Kepnolican candidates is for this remedy, and it is the applica-tion of the sovereign cure for political ills. The Force Bill is not in it. The last rally of the Democracy on a fraud is a failure. MURAT HALSTEAD.

THE COURTS.

Non-suit in the Bolden-Llewellyn Case.

There Was No Negligence on the Part of the Employers.

Attachment Issued by Judge Wade for Charles John Orth

To Be Brought Back from Humbold County to Answer for Contempt-Court Notes.

In Department Five yesterday morning the trial of the $20,000 damage suit instituted by West Bolden, a negro, against the Llewellyn Brothers, for the loss of an eye on account of an accident, was resumed before Judge Shaw

Two witnesses were called on behalf of the plaintiff, who then rested his case, whereupon the defendants' counsel moved the Court for a judgment of non-suit, which was granted by Judge Shaw in accordance with the following brief opinion:

The complaint charges negligence on the part of the defendants in requiring plaintiff to assist in pouring melted iron into a car wheel which it is alleged is a dangerous operation, the danger being known to defendants and unknown to plaintiff at the time. It appears from the evidence that it is not particularly dangerous to pour melted iron into a car wheel, but it becomes so when the wheel contains water or some substance which will form gas from the heat; also that whether or not the wheel contains water is a fact that can be discovered.

contains water is a fact that can be discovered.

At is not alleged that the defendants required plaintift to assist in pouring the iron into a car wheel which was wet. In this particular there was a variance. It does not appear, except by inference, that the wheels were wet, nor does it appear at all that defendants knew or supposed they had water in them. It is shown that one Réné had charge of the operation, and if the wheel was wet, and he made no examination to ascertain the fact, this was negligence of Réné, a fellow-servant of plaintiff for which plaintiff cannot recover.

Therefore, both on the ground that the negligence proven is not the negligence and that it was not defendants' negligence, but that of a fellow-servant, the motion for a non-suit is granted.

CONSUMPTION

The following are prominent symptoms in the first stage, and wherever any of them exist a thorough examination should always be made with a view to arrest the disease if shown to exist: There is usually a sense of weariness upon a little exercise, a disposition to remain passive and idle, despondency, often from no apparent cause, a peculiar sensitiveness to the effect of cold, and a breathlessness upon moving quickly or ascending a hill or stairs, a slight, hacking cough, with or without expectoration, excitability upon slight occasions, flying pains through the chest or back, or under the shoulder blades. The symptoms are morthous the chest of the control old feel and hands, or in many cases blue lividity of the lips and roots of the linger nails. Sometimes spitting of blood or slight streaks in the macous is the first indication of twercular deposit, or it may be a chilly sensation in the back, followed by more or less heat in the palms of the hands or an afternoon flush on the cheeks. The slow and gradual inroads of this form of consumption leave the stomach and appetite undisturbed for a considerable time. Finally, however, hectic fever and night sweats supervene, preceded by diarrhoga. Then the loss of fless and strength becomes rapid, the eye attains an unusual britishance in the palent begins to realize that he is is in the last stage of confirmed consumption.

VALK is cheap, and for that reason we will give you a short talk on kid gloves. We have taken the exclusive agency for the P. & P. kid gloves. Kid skins are mostly bought in the mountains of Italy. In February of each year accredited agents are sent out, and they follow the mountain ranges until they reach the plains of the Baltic. Goats are driven to the snow line of the mountains to feed on the tender branches and shrubs and trees, They are well taken care of until the proper age, when they are slaughtered by thousands. The skins are mostly shipped to Grenoble, France, where all the best kid gloves are made. There is an infinite variety in the quality of skins. Manufacturers of known reliability are the first to make their selections, and are the ones that keep up their reputation for quality. After a careful investigation into the merits of the P. & P. gloves, we have placed them on our counters for your inspection. We believe them to be of the very best material, and the shape of the glove is well nigh perfect. The agents of these gloves care more for a reputation for their trade mark than they do for the immediate profit, and for this reason we shall offer you the goods at a very low price. You know the past reputation of our kid glove department. It is better today than ever before. And in connection with kid gloves we again remind you of the great 50c line of all-wool dress goods. Plenty of them are worth 65c, 75c and 85c. We realize the fact the dress goods department of a dry goods house is the foundation for the entire business. Dress goods and cloaks! What a mighty name they have already achieved; greater and more prosperous than ever before. Gaining prestige every day. They are the two big departments of this house. Dress goods doubling up sales. Cloaks trebling sales over a year ago. Next week our second big millinery opening will occur. It will be far superior to our spring opening in every way. Due announcement of the date of opening will be made in a few

The same officer reported recommending that in the matter of the repairs necessary in the Zanja Madre tunnel, the blocked up nortion be timbered as before recommended, as it was impossible to ascertain at present whether or not only a part or the whole of the 490 feet of that part of the tunnel had caved in, and it would cost about as much to put in temporary timbers as to do the work permanently, and brick would be too expensive for consideration. Referred to the Zanja Committee. Plans and specifications were submitted for the proposed new water supply for the city as recommended by the special committee appointed for that purpose, and the same were referred to the Part of Public Work:

Items About Water from Devil's Gate.

A Quiet Day in Town-Dance at the Carl ple You Know-The News

Yesterday morning Director C. C. Brown of the Lake Vineyard Water Company, Director A. K. Mc Quilling of the Pasadena Water Company, Engineer J. W. Sedwick and the Times reporter drove up to Devil's Gate to inspect the progress of the work of development.

in Brief.

Gate to inspect the progress of the work of development.

Briefly summed up, it may be stated that the developing process is going through with a rush—in fact it is getting there on as many feet as a quadruped has. Much has been accomplished, but more is to follow, and when all that is projected is finished a veritable river of water will flow from this source to make glad the denizens of this yicinity for all time to come.

ished a veritable river of water will flow from this source to make glad the denizens of this vicinity for all time to come.

As is generally known, the cast and west tunnels have been dug to a total depth of 800 feet, the distance called for by the first contract. The east tunnel is 500 feet, Company of the contract of the companies property. When the cast tunnel has been further extended a distance of 300 feet it will reach the limit of the companies property. When the west tunnel has been stretched out another 400 feet under the high hill, it will open on the bed of the arroyo a couple of hundred feet above the gate proper, and a further extension of 300 feet will take it across the arroyo bed and well up into marshy land on the west side of the cafon. This is the work the companies propose to do next.

Bids have been advertised for. Next week they will be opened, and then the work will begin. The east tunnel will be first attacked, for here is where a rich water find has been struck. Up at the end of the tunnel, 500 feet under ground, the water is rushing in in torrents. A dam of heavy timbers has been necessitated to prevent the flow washing away the banks, but even this falls to keep the water back, and it makes its appearance in wholesale quantities and with almost startling rapidity. No wonder then that the directors want to keep on diggling on the line mapped, for every foot they go the more plentiful becomes the water. The west tunnel will be extended to the arroyo for the purpose of guarding against a waste of water above the gate by forming a direct outlet to the mouth of the tunnel, rather than in the hopes of obtaining any material increase in the supply from the tunnel itself.

The tunnel work having been completed, a dam at Devil's Gate will be in order. On this point the directors of both commander.

mouth of the tunnel, rather than in the hopes of obtaining any material increase in the supply from the tunnel itself.

The tunnel work having been completed, a dam at Devil's Gate will be in order. On this point the directors of both companies agree almost to a man, and in it is found a sure and speedy solution of the much-vexed water problem. So far the tunneling has been carried on at the joint expense of the East and West Side companies. As matters now stand the extension of the work under a new contract will be carried on by the Lake Vineyard company above. This is because the West Side company is spending the bulk of its surplus cash at present, at the Sheep Corrai springs. Some of, the directors of this company, however, favor having a mutual interest in all the work that goes on at Devil's Gate, and it is possible that some arrangement will be effected to this end before further progress is made. A small force of men are now engaged cleaning out the tunnels. A description of the interesting trip would not be complete without making reference to the highly picturesque appearance of Councilman McQuilling, Street Superintendent Brown and City Engineer Sedwick, attired in rubber boots, gossamers and hats much worse for wear, especially as they emerged from the tunnel, dripping wet and covered with mud. On the way home the party were driven over streets so thoroughly watered that it was necessary to keep well to one side to avoid the mud, a fact which seemed to please Mr. Brown very much.

LOOK AROUND.

A gentleman, whose home is on the highlands and who seldom visits town of an evening, observed a few nights ago when he drove down to attend a public meeting and saw the streets thronged with people: "Why this looks more like boom times than anything I have seen in Pasadéna for four years." His escort assured him that the spectacle was not an extraordinary one and that he hadn't seen half of the people yet. The gentleman was even more surprised when he entered the hall where the meeting was held and found it

In striking contrast with the above may tor to the effect that he could see but visitor to the effect that he could see out little change in Pasadena since he was here three years ago. "Well," said a well-known Pasadenian, "you had better look around." The man did and went away converted. He is coming back soon with his family to live.

A Much-needed Improvement Taking Shape—Renaming the Streets.

Shape—Renaming the Streets.

A much-needed public improvement has at last taken shape, and will probably be presented at the next Council meeting. It is in regark to the naming of the streets of the city. Everybody knows that it is about as hard to tell any one where a certain house is in this city as it is to explain a route to the North Pole. The proposed plan is a very simple one, and easily understood. Taking the Southern Pacific Rallwayas a dividing line for the streets running east and west, the plan is to name the first street south of the track, South First street, the next South Second, then South Third and so on. Beginning north of the track the first street would be North First, the next North Second, then North Third street, the next South Second, then South Third and so on. Beginning north of the track the first street would be North First, the next North Second, then North Third and so on. Then taking Garey avenue as a dividing line for the streets running north and south, the first street east would be East A avenue, the next East B avenue, then East C avenue and so on. West of Gary the First street would be West A avenue, next West B avenue, then West C avenue and so on. This plan would be easily understood and there would be no wouble about directions, as "Old Baldy" (Mt. SairAntonio) is north of the city, and can always be seen. The way the streets are named now, it takes a resident about four years to get "on to" the names.

Another improvement which the city fathers are asked to look up is that of the purchase of a town clock. There is not a place in Pomona where a citizen can walk along the street and observe the time of day. The jewelers have elegant clocks, but they are inside the houses. A good clock could be procured at a small expense, and it would really be of great public benefit. "Our friends, the enemy." are keeping the matter very quiet, but it has leaked out that they expect to spring the argument on the Republican nominee for the Assembly from this district that he is opposed to county division. This is the merest bosh, and the soomer that little game is dropped the better for all partles. Everybody who knows Maj. Andrews at all knows that he has large property interests here and is from all standpoints interested in the best welfare of the city and valley. The Democrats are hard up for argument when they spring that one.

The residents of Pomona, or at least a good many of them, have avenue.

welfare of the city and valley. The Demorats are hard up for argument when they spring that one.

The residents of Pomona, or at least a good many of them, have apparently lost their minds on the subject of Jumping on and off railway cars while in motion. Even old men insist on gettling on the cars and inding seats for their daughters, thus taking away the conductor's business. Lately there have been several very narrow escapes from death, some being knocked down and dragged out by friends in time to avoid a horrible death. A little ordinance might help matters in this line.

Liver Disease

(Exchange.)
When fowls have liver disease they rarely show any symptoms when in full lay, but when they leave off laying the disease makes rapid progress. For some years I have been studying these some years I have been studying these symptoms and watching certain birds, and have noticed when they are in full lay the disease goes to the eggs, which seems to be an outlet for it while the birds are laying. I will explain what I mean. It can easily be tested by those who occasionally have birds with 'liver disease. If a hen is killed which has laid her last batch of eggs and has this disease, there will be small spots all over the liver not larger than a pin's head. This is what is called tuberculosis. When these diseased hens are not killed they eat ravenously, and the tuberculous spots increase in size very fast; in about three weeks they are about the size of a small bean. They not only grow upon the liver, but upon not only grow upon the liver, but upon the intestines like fungus, and com-pletely block the birds up, so there is no doubt it is best to kill fowls affected with this disease at once.

JAY GOULD AND WABASH. Many Eastern railroad men profess to see something significant in the election of Jay Gould, George Gould and several of their friends to membership in the directory of the Wabash. The president of one of the Western systems is quoted as saying that Gould had again secured control of the Wabash with a view of making it a part of the Missouri Pacificand getting a line of his own into Chicago. Another official said that, although the Wabash had been regarded as virtually a Gould road, the Wizard had actually lost control of it, and only recently succeeded in gathering in enough of the stock to again enable him to dictate the policy of the company. The official in question thinks that Gould will use his power agairst Chicago and strive more vigorously than ever to divert through traffic from the Chicago gateway by sending it through St. Louis by way of Detroit and Toledo. ROSH-HASHANAH.

The Jewish New Year to Begin This Even-ing—Services at the Synagogue.

Rosh-Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins this evening with sun-down, and is kept with strict solemnity, all business houses being closed during the celebration, and orthodox Hebrew everywhere giving themselves up to the proper observance of the festival.

mence at 6 p.m.

Thursday at 9:45 a.m. Rev. Dr. A.
Blum will preach in the synagogue.
Subject, "Power of Religion."

For Eve of Rosh-Hashanah. Give thanks to God! before His altar glowing.

With freedom's light divine,
Celestial gifts, life's holiness bestowing
With flowers and gens entwine;
In skies o'erarching earth with evening's splendor,
The "Stars of Freedom" shine:

Give thanks to God! the two-fold summon' heeding.

That ushers in the night
Of festal promise! o'er the whole earth speeding.
Wings with a swift delight,
The gracious charm by freedom's herald wafted In mandates of the right!

Give thanks to God! for harvest stores out-vieing,

The dreams of plenteousness;
For power to ald the starving millions crying,
In want and soul-distress;
The freighted year with precious teaching's laden, laden, Is o'er, with "storm and stress!"

Give thanks to God! the New Year's hand extended, extended,
Bears riches manifold;
High alms of Freedom with this purpose blended;
Fruitions that enfold
The world-wide reach of all the centuries' glory, By Seer and Prophet told!

Give thanks to God! for the eventual beauty.

Garnered from strife and tears:

For bounteous reapings in the fields of duty.

Throughout the darkened years.

In festal garb, with Freedom's summons treighted,

The better time appears!

Give thanks to God! who led this servant

Moses
Unto the mount divine;
Who evermore His holy will discloses
By Freedom's unveiled shrine;
Who great Columbus' inspiration guided Where "Stars of Freedom" shine!

Give thanks to God! for all of past en deavor
In Freedom's sacred aim;
For dauntless bravery of the souls that never Incurred the recreant's blame,

Thy mandate of the light through space resounding Thy holiness proclaim! A. BLUM.

Los Angeles (Cal..) Sept. 19, 1892.—[To the Editor of The Times.] In reply to articles recently published in the newspapers regarding my resignation as Master and Examiner in Chancery of the United States Court at Los Angeles, I take this occasion to say that the charges are wholly unfounded. In detail, I have not collected a dollar for reporters for more than a year and a half; when I did receive an allowance for reporters fip paid them invariably more than I collected for them instead of less, and sometimes paid them myself for time lost when they performed no services.

In taking testimony the questions are put to the witnesses, not by the Examiner as might be supposed, but by the attorneys; and it is only at rare intervals that I have interrogated the witnesses at all, and then only to remove obscurities which are clearly apparent in the records; all of which are on file in the court.

I have never made the large profits spoken of in the newspapers, and have in fact received only a reasonable compensation. Instead of increasing the costs to litigants, I have in many ways constantly reduced the expense.

The attorneys in the cases before me

I have in many ways constantly carpense.

The attorneys in the cases before me know that I have constantly eliminated from the records great quantities of matter that in my judgment had no tendency to help the court in deciding the cases.

I performed the duties of the office with the most painstaking fidelity and I have no cause for shame or apology for anything that I did. Very respectfully,

CHAS. L. BATCHELLER.

There's danger in a cough—more than ever when your blood is 'bad." It makes things easy for Consumption. But Consumption. But there's a cure for it in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A posting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma and all lingering Coughs, but for Consumption itself in all its earlier stages. It's reasonable. All these diseases depend on tainted blood. Consumption is simply Lung-scrofula. And for every form of scrofula and blood-taint, the "Discovery" is a certain remedy. It's so cartain, that its makers guarantee it to benefit or cure, in every case, or the imoney is refunded. With a medicine that is certain, that can be done.

There's a cure for Catarrh, too, no matter what you've been led to believe. If there isn't, in your case, you'll get $500 cash. It's a bona fide offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

THE DEMOCRATS.

First Day's Work of the County

Most of the Nominations So Made by Acclamation.

Martin C. Marsh Named for Sheriff on the First Ballot.

Col. E. E. Hewitt Nominated for Tax Collector and Hon. J. de Barth Shorb for Treasurer-Other Candidates Named.

The Democrats set the wheels of their county convention in motion in Turnverein Hall yesterday morning with 431 delegates in the chairs, and a mixed audience of citizens and one lady in the gallery. The convention was called by the County Central Committee for the purpose of placing a county and district ticket in the field. Up to a few days ago candidates were not numer-ous, but they have been accumulating at a rapid rate of speed since last Sat-arday, and when the doors of Turnver-ein Hall were thrown open yesterday morning at 9 o'clock the sidewalks in front of the hall were crowded with anxious office-seekers, who were ready to pounce on every delegate that ventured too near.

The delegates did not begin to arrive until late and it was just 10:25 o'clock when Hon. J. de Barth Shorb, Chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee, mounted the stage, and after a few minutes conversation with Secre-tary Martin C. Marsh, called the contary Martin C. Marsh, called the convention to order.

One of the main features of the convention was the handsome manner in which the stage had been decorated for the occasion. Large oil paintings of the national candidates of the party were placed on either side of the stage, and a life-size painting of Hon. Stephen M. White gracefully swung over the chairman's table. Flags and bunting and flowers were tastefully arranged and presented a fetching appearance from all parts of the hall.

The galjery was well filled all day and presented a fetching appearance from all parts of the hall.

The galiery was well filled all day with leading lights of the People's party and they took a deep interest in the proceedings and seemed anxious to have the convention put up a strong ticket. Several of them spentconsiderable time on the main floor and were noticed consulting with the delegates. The convention as a whole is composed of a representative lot of men, and from the manner in which they went to work it is evident that they propose to keep their heads and put up the best timber in the party. They were slow and deliberate in every move, and yet when work was to be done they lost no time but went at it in a business-like manner that is seldom witnessed in a county convention.

abusiness-like manner that is seldom witnessed in a county convention.

The convention adopted harmony tactics from the start, and even the defeated candidates took their medicine without a murmur and pledged themselves to do all in their power to secure the success of the ticket.

That the party leaders are artists in the resolution line no one who was present when the platform was read could doubt for a moment. Not only the delegates but the entire audience, including a number of Republicans, jumped to their feet and shouted themselves hoarse.

The convention selected its officers without a hitch, and before the day's work was over it was evident they did not make any mistakes. Mr. Ryan is cutck and well un in the husiness and no work was over it was evident they did not make any mistakes. Mr. Ryan is quick and well up in the business and no unnecessary time was lost. The nominations made during the afternoon and evening apparently gave satisfaction, and there were but few kickers.

MORNING SESSION.

Temporary Organization—Appointment of the Committees.

The convention was called to order at 10:25 o'clock by Hon. J. de Barth Shorb, chairman of the Democratic County Central Committee. Mr. Shorb announced the object of the conven-tion, and stated that they met under primaries were held without friction, and he was confident that the best possible feeling prevailed throughout convention, and that the best men in the party would be selected to fill the

The secretary then read the call and the chair announced that the first business of the convention would be the selection of a temporary chairman.

At this stage of the proceedings Mr. Workman gracefully rose to his feet and in a neat little speech withdrew

J. W. Mitchell hurried to take the floor and moved that Mr. Ryan be elected by acclamation. This motion was received with loud

This motion was received with loud applause, showing that Mr. Ryan was a general favorite. He was elected with a whoop and the next moment he mounted the stage and was introduced to the convention by Chairman Shorh. On taking the chair Mr. Ryan thanked the delegates for the honor they had conferred upon him by making him the presiding officer of the largest convention ever held in Southern California.

He delivered a lengthy address, in which he pointed out what he called the misdeeds of the Republican party in this country, alleging that all kinds of corrupt practices have been carried on In conclusion Mr. Hyan said:

We are confronted by a party which advocates deep sea harbors in Southern California to suck in the commerce of the world, yet which supports a system of their farmer is getting more for his wheat, and the sas; that advocates the extension of our railroads, yet which supports a system of their farmer is getting more for his wheat, and the laborer is paying less of his bread; and, above all. Democratic success will prevent the creation and perpetuation of a politocracy at Washington by the passage of atmospherical constitutional practiced on the taxpayers of Los Angeles than all other agencies combined; a party that would foster the manufacturing industries of California, yet which supports a giant railroad-corporation which has done more to impede the progress of this great State than all other agencies combined; a party that makes those industries possible; a party that has "blown in the surplus" and increased taxation. The great bushness element of the county without regard to party look to you for relief. If, you to day nominate only men whose names are a guarantee of wheet and economical government, the prospects for their election are unusually bright. Put only good men ou guard and the fight is aircady won, and we shall have a return to the principles of economical county government.

Messrs. Webster Wotkyns and William M. Ardis were elected secretaries of the convention and at once took places on the stage.

On motion of Andy McNally, Hon. J. de Barth Shorb was elected a delegate-

On motion of Mr. Ryan of the Third Ward it was decided to appoint a com-mittee of fifteen on credentials, the Chair to select three from each super visorial district to compose the com

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Reports of Committees—The Platform—Nominations Commenced.

There was quite an increase in the army of office-seekers between the hours of 12 noon and 2 o'clock which the convention adjourned. They seemed to suddenly awaken to the fact that this is a good year for the outs, and for fully an hour before the officemaking mill got its wheels in motion the lobby was crowded with would-be's, the lobby was crowded with would-be's, and the way they went for the hayseed delegates was a caution. The button-holing process made things lively until Chairman Ryan brought his orangewood club down and called the convention to order and requested the delegates to take their places. The leaders of the party were present and wore a contented look, which indicated that their advice would be taken in the selection of the ticket.

It was 2:45 before the Committee on Credentials was ready to report, on account of trouble about proxies that had not been handed in. At that hour the Chair again called the convention to order and asked the city delegates to take their places on the left side of the hall and the country. their places on the left side of the hall and the country delegates on the right hand. This created some confusion, as some of the delegates from Pasadena had not been given seats. Matters were finally settled and the chairman of the Committee on Credentials reported, stating that there were no contests in any of the precincts and a list of delegates was read. There were but few changes from the list already published.

people and upon it assist the suffrage of the voter at the coming election.

Pirst—We realize our adherence to the principles and policies of the party as expressed in its National and State platforms adopted at Chicago and Fresno. And we congratulate the people on the assuring outlook from Maine to California for the success of our party and the certain and triumphant election to the Presidency and Vice-Presidency of the United States of those typical and American citizens, Grover Cleveland and Adiai E. Stevenson. And we further felicitate the people upon the fact that their election will mean the faithful administration of the affairs of the people as a public trust; the equalizaistration. And we are in favor of an amendment of all existing laws so as to provide for the consolidation of the offices of City Aussessor, City Tax Collector and City Auditor of the city of Los Angeles with the respective corresponding offices of the county.

Third—We demounce the loose and extravagant manner in which contracts have been made by Republican officials in behalf of partisans, notably those made for furnishing the Courthouse and Whittier Reform school; and, particularly, the outrageous disregard of business principles and morals by County Clerk Ward in making the Courthouse and Whittier Reform school; and, particularly, the outrageous disregard of business principles and morals by County Clerk Ward in making the contract for printing the Great Register, whereby at least $2000 of the public money was donated to a Republican newspaper; and we believe that all public work pertaining to the county government should be let to the lowest responsible bidder after due advertisement, thus preventing a county official from using such patronage for the benefit of personal friends or as a consideration for past or future political support.

Fourth—We advocate the abolishment of at least two Superior Court; judges, as it has been demonstrated that there is not sufficient court practice to consume the time and energy of even four fairly industrious judges, working six hours each working day.

Fifth—Upon broad and patriotic grounds we recognize the baleful influences of that grashing, selfish and merciless corporation, the Union League, upon the affairs of Los Angeles county. Its purposes and practices set at defiance the objects of all fairminded people, of whatever party; it seeks to dominate our public positions, from the lighest to the lowest, fostering upon the tax-ridden masses an army of favorites, whose chief duty it is to advante the fortunes of this oligarchy.

Sixth—The mortgage tax law is clearly in the interests of the money lender and to the detriment of the borrowing class, and excludes from acti permission to read the following resolutions, which he statedcame in too late to be embodied in the report of the Committee on Resolutions, and which, together with the report of the Committee, were unanimously adopted:

The interests of labor, including agriculture, concern the great body of the people, and are more important than all other property interests combined; they should, therefore, be the first and chief care of the Government that it may foster employment, secure fair wages and remunerative prices for the products of labor and prevent earnings from being taken from their owners by indirect methods and conditions created by governmental policies. The earnings of labor are more than twelve thousand million dollars every year.

The interest of the owners of land and other property in contradistinction to the owners of money and securities representing money, are next in Importance. The total assessed valuation of property in the United States is about twenty-five thousand million dollars, of which twenty-four thousand million dollars are lands and property, andless than one thousand million dollars are money and its representatives. And yet-legislation and government in its executive and judicial branches have been and are dominated by the owners of property. This should be reformed.

Complaints that this has not been done, which have sought redress in forming farmers' alliances, labor funions and other organizations, are well founded, as the depressed tondition of laborers and land owners apply but these organizations, even if all worked together, are too limited in membership to control legislation and afford relief.

The Democratic party in full sympathy with labor, and with the owners of lands and other property in distinction from the owners of money and its representatives, and other organizations are well founded, as the depressed tondition of laborers and land owners apply but these organizations, even if all worked together, are too limited in membership to control legislation and afford reli

As an aid to this end, we advise voters to piedge all candidates who might control legislation to this general course, and to instruct them in such particular measures of relief as each constituency can in its wisdom devise, but leaving them free to act in conjunction with others after consultation. Thus immediate relief, from the most pressing evils, will be obtained, and still more important, an orderly method of complete redress by continued legislation in the interest of labor and of owners of property will have been devised and inaugurated. We invite the cooperation of all in this effective method of practical and permanent relief.

Our enemies, the monopolisis and money changers, will try to divide us, but let all who are like minded on these most important questions not be kept apart by mere forms and party names when we can secure the substance of redress by all working and voting together in the only organization that can and will achieve success.

J. Marion Brooks then offered a resolution authorizing the County Central Committee to fill all vacancies that may occur on the ticket.

The next order of business was the collection of 50 cents a head from the delegates, and they responded hobly.

Hewitt, especially as Col. Hewitt was attacked. Col. Hewitt had been chairman of the County Central Committee of this county, and had given his party good service. While he is an officer in the employ of the Southern Pacific Company, he will resign that office if he is nominated, and he will be as fair to the people as he is to the railroad company.

The Chair then had considerable trouble in holding the seconding speech-makers down to the rule, as all wanted to make flowery talks.

The attendance last evening much larger than at any time during the day, and, while there was considerpart of the hall, the delegates attended strictly to business, and, with the as-sistance of the sergeants-at-arms, the chair soon quieted the disorderly ones down and harmony once more took possession of the hall.

A delegate with weak lungs at-tempted to shut down on smoking, but his motion was voted down by a large majority.

The following resolution was adopted by a standing vote: WHEREAS, in the sudden and unexpected death of ex-Mayor E. F. Spence the city and county of Los Angeles has lost a valued and true friend, therefore be it Resolved by this convention that, irrespective of politics, we sincerely deplore his death, and tender to his family our con-

His strong argument in favor of Mr. Gibson was to the effect that the gentleman won at the election two years ago when he had a great Republican majority to overcome; but he did it, and he deserved to be given a chance to make the run again. He had made an excellent officer, and could be elected again.

The principal business of the evening was to receive the report of the committee appointed to ascertain as to whether the city primary elections should or could be held under the Porter Mr. Knox, as chairman of that committee, spoke on the question, outlining the extensive scope necessarily em-braced in such an investigation, and of-fered in behalf of the committee the rered in behalf of the committee the following, which was accepted and ordered filed:

To the members of the City Central Committee. GENTLEMEN: Your committee appointed to examine the Porter primary election law (known as the Australian Ballot System), as passed at the last session; the State Levislature respectfully report that tem), as passed at the last session? the State Legislature, respectfully report that they have carefully examined the matter, and as a result of such examination beg to report their conclusions, as follows:

Under the sections of the Political Code Nos. 1357 to 1365 inclusive providing for holding primary elections under the so-called "Porter law," it was and is prescribed that certain other sections of the general election laws should be made applicable to such primary elections, those sections being forty-seven in number. To these were added by the Porter law certain other provisions expressly named.

The last Legislature amended the general election law, by incorporating in it what is known as the "Australia" in the seven was the seven was a seven w thirteen sections of the Porter law

thus in no manner doing away with the primary election law.

The thirteen sections of the Porter law that are changed by the new amendments are Nos. 1192 to 1196 inclusive, 1199 to 1203 inclusive, and 1237 to 1236 inclusive. These amended sections in effect absolutely repeal just so much of the old primary election law without adding or providing anything as a substitute, for the purpose and intent of the amendments show that they cannot in their very nature be made applicable to primary elections.

The question, therefore, arises: "Is there sufficient machinery left in the thirty-four remaining unchanged sections of the primary election law with sections 1357 to 1365 added thereto to provide for legally holding the primaries thereunder:" This is, perhaps, best answered by carefully examining these sections, and briefly, stating the nature of the same.

Sections 1083 and 1024 prescribe who are qualified electors, and who are not entitled to vote: 1144 and 1358 provide for the appointment of the board of election for each voting precinct: 1145 makes the inspector chalirman of the board of election for each voting precinct: 1145 makes the inspector chalirman of the board of the board to take the oath of duty; 1162 requires the board to to pen and exhibit the bailot box before voting begins, and defines the duty of the board regarding the same; 1163 and 1164 require the board to make proclamation at the opening and closing of the poils; 1174 prescribes the form of poll lists and taily lists to be kept; 1175 defines what omissions and irregularities shall not vitiate the election; 1224 and 1338 prescribe the time the voting shall, begin and continue; 1227 provides that no one shall vote whose name is not on the Great Register in use at the precinct, and provides also for depositing the ballot in the ballot box; 1229 requires each clerk to keep a list of the voters and their names, and that they shall be numbered thereon in numerical order: 1236 provides bailot in the bailot box; 1229 requires each clerk to keep a list of the voters and thei names, and that they shall be numbere thereon in numerical order; 1230 provide the grounds for challenge, and 1231-23-and 5 prescribe the proceedings, the oath to be administered and questions to be administered. and 5 prescribe the proceedings, the oaths to be administered and questions to be asked by the inspector when a voter is challenged; 1236 and 1237 provide how the challenge shall be determined by the board; 1238 provides when the vote may be rejected; 1239 and 1240 prescribe the rules for determining the place and term of residence of the voter; 1241 and 1242 prescribe the duty of the board in reading the statutory rules of residence and their decision upon the challenge made; 1252-3-45-6 fix the method of canvassing the vote on closing the polls and prescribe the duty of the board; 1260 provides that when the votes are all counted the board shall make out lists of persons voted for and the number of votes given for each candidate, and how the lists shall be signed and attested; 1362 provides that the judges shall cause the ballots and one copy of the poll list to be sent to the secretary signing the notice of election; 1363 and 1384 declare who shall issue certificates of election, and 1365 makes the provisions of the perial code as to violations of the election law and the punishment provided therefor applicable to all primary elections held under the Porter law.

therefor applicable to all primary elections held under the Porter law.

From the foregoing we conclude that none of the changes made in the so-called Porter primary law in any way affect the practical operation of that law; that where any changes have been made in the law, the new provisions of law are simply impossible of application, and only act as repeal of the particular sections that have been amended, and that the remaining sections of the Porter law provide a full, complete and perfect method of conducting the primary elections, with all the safeguards

Stretching away for many miles east and south of the city are the old red earth forts and parapets over which, and back and forth for ten long months raged one of the flercest and bloodiest struggles ever known among men.

the "goober" creep—the noted peanut product of this region.

Still yawns the great chasm of the bloody "crater," where Mahone became the "Savior of Petersburg" and the idol of the Confederacy.

In the museum you view with shrinking cariosity an army "brogan" shoe containing the bones of a soldier's foot from which the fiesh long ago disappeared. You examine the Confederate musket in which a Yankee and rebel bullet met each other and split the bar-skull or tibia of the soldier of the days of 1864, and the negro boys and girls, with baskets, gathered up the bullets and pieces of shells to sell to the junk shop in Petersburg.

This junk shop has made tens of thousands of dollars in this business, and for years after the war carloads of lead and iron from the battlefields were sent away. Even today little negroes, after a rainstorm and a new plowing, go out with their buckets and baskets to pick up bullets, as children in New England go out to pick strawberries.

those of war and death and the decision of mighty human matters that began at Naseby and ended at Appomattox. It was the old struggle of the Roundhead and the Cavalier, or what those terms represent to humanity.

In the struggle William Mahone was one of the most prominent figures. "Mahone's brigade" was the flower of the "Army of Northern Virginia," and Mahone was the last trusted counsellor and advisor of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Mahone was the last trusted counsellor and advisor of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

In Gen. Mahone's house hangs the sword presented him by the citizens of Petersburg, inscribed, "To the Savior of Petersburg." But the people who bought and presented that sword will hold no intercourse with Gen. Malone now; though in their hearts, they still preserve their respect and admiration for the dashing and daring Confederate leader who never knew fear and who was always in the front.

Pettigrew, Armistead and Kemper went down to death in leading that advance, and Armistead died gloriously with his arm around the muzzle of a Federal cannon. The element of fear is utterly absent

The element of fear is utterly absent from the composition of Mahone. He rather errs in the other direction.

In the campaign for the Governorship of Virginia, a few years ago, Mahone opened the fight at Abingdon. He spoke in a tobacco warehouse while the Democrats held their opposition meeting in the courthouse, half a mile away. When he stepped upon the platform he had before him an audience of 1000 people. Four-fifths of his audience were whites, and two or three front lines of benches were filled with old gray-haired and gray-whiskered men. gray-haired and gray-whiskered men, born and bred in the country, and most gray-haired and gray-whiskered men, born and bred in the country, and most of them ex-Confederate soldiers. Back of them, line upon line, were the young men of the country—farmers, stock-raisers, tobacco-growers and mean looking to the future more than to the past. Upon the wall at the back of the platform hung a large American flag—the only ornament of the kind that was displayed in Abingdon. Upon it, in large black letters, were the words: "Protection and Education."

In front of Mahone stood a little table, or "light stand," as it is called in the country. Upon the table stood a pitcher holding about a pint of water, and a whisky tumbler of the most approved pattern.

When Gen. Mahone advanced to the front of the platform to make his first speech in behalf of himself for a public office in Virginia, he was a study for a painter. He is about 5 feet 5 inches in height, and weighs about 100 pounds with his clothes on. He wears a number 5½ glove and a number 8½ shoe. He does not wear collars or cuffs, but in their place he uses a linen frill about his neck and about his wrist, the frills about his neck and about his wrist, the frills about his neck and about his wrists united by link gold buttons, presented to him by his young daughter, Otelia.

His trousers are pleated in at the waist and cut very small over his instep, though they are large and loose about the knee. Both coat and trousers are dark, blue-black broadcloth. His waistcoat is of salmen-colored silk, and the buttons upon it are polished

CHEESE, Roquefort, Swiss, &c., Stephens and the buttons upon it are polished brass of gilt. He fastens but one button of his waistcoat, the lower one, and leaves the broad pleated expanse of shirt front exposed, or such portion as is not hidden by his Peffer-like beard. There is not a woman in the land who would not envy Gen. Mahone the size, the shape and the dress of his feet. No Andalusian maiden ever walked upon a more aristocratically formed foot than Cen. Mahone. His shoes are made to order by a special shoemaker, and summer and winter he wears a low kid or pateat-leather shoe with Oxford ties. In fact, in his personal habits and care he is as dainty and faatidious as a young girl.

young girl. While Gen. Mahone is fond of good While Gen. Mahone is fond of good living in a quiet way, and always so-journs at John Chamberlain's famous hostelry in Washington, he is not a gourmand in any sense of the word, but is as "select" in his eating and drinking as he is in his personal make-up. Nothing delights him more in his hand-some home at Petershurg than to gather some home at Petersburg than to gather upon the table the finest delicacies of the season and dispense the hospitalities of his house in the royal old Virginia style. From the selected hogfish that are sent to him daily from Norfolk, and the bass that are smoked for him especially, to the gorgeous mint juleps that are served upon his veranda by his handsome body servant, John, whose mother was Mahone's "mammy" before the war, the good cheer and hospitality of the Mahone mansion are matters of comment among those who have enjoyed them.

When Mahone speaks in public he upon the table the finest delicacies of joyed them.

When Mahone speaks in public he seems to lose sight of everything else in seems to lose sight of everything else in the world except the subject upon which he is talking. He walks back- and fourth incessantly in a little course of about six feet, never stopping for a moment, and his voice is as clear as a bugle note. From the beginning to the end of his speech-making he never ceases in this walk, his arms are never idic, he stamps his small feet upon the floor and seems to gesticulate not only idle, he stamps his small feet upon the floor and seems to gesticulate not only with his arms but with his legs. No one listening to him can resist the magnetic influence that flows from the man. He speaks with the ardor and honesty of conviction and the daring of the man asserting his own belief, who led the conquering Confederate troops into the "crater" at Petersburg.

Of course the most interesting side of Gen. Mahone is that relating to his po-

Gen. Mahone is that relating to his political and public experience since the war.

But with this I do not propose to treat in this article, as it is written merely to deal with Mahone's personality as we meet him in his home life.

As for the position he took politically and his views after the war, I dismiss that with the repetition of a remark he made to me just after his defeat for the Governorship of Virginia a few years ago. Said Mahone: "I surrendered more

Said Mahone: "I surrendered more muskets at Appomattox than any other Confederate General did, and my command was the only one in the Confederate army that was in good fighting condition. so carefully had I cared for my soldiers. When I surrendered, I surrendered, Our cause was lost. I had been the worst fire-eater of all, but the fight was fought out and the thing decided. I turned my mind to the manner of the triumphant party and the policy that was to control, and turned in my work for free labor, industry and development of resources. The other Confederate officers who passed in my work for free labor, industry and development of resources. The other Confederate officers who passed their time cursing the Yankees after the war, curse me decause I surrendered in good faith and adopted the ways of the victorious side and made money while they spent their venom in vituperation. I have nothing to regret in my course. My fight during the war was nothing to compare with my fight since the war, because I have had to fight the hates and prejudices of my own people and still live in the midst of them. My wife and my daughter have been driven away from their home, but I shall stay in this contest as long as I live, and I think I shall live about a hundred years."

I give this, as it contains a kodak picture of Mahone which you can read perfectly.

While Mahone is a fighter his farth. the war, curse me decause I surrendered

While Mahone is a fighter, his fault is that he is too much of a fighter.
He is impatient under restraint, no matter how wise and intolerant of riv-matter now wise and intolerant of rivalry. Though little in figure, the instincts of the autocrat and dictator are strong in him.

Qualities like these were required in the course he pursued and the work he andertook in Virginia, but he failed to some extent to mingle with them for some extent to mingle with them for employment, at the proper time; those of arbitration and compromise. By this I mean within party lines, for, of tourse, there could be no arbitration or compromise between Mahone and the Democrats, or the "Bourbons," as he invariably designates the Democrats of Virginia.

Intended to touch upon it at all; but snything concerning Mahone would be incomplete without it. Mahone's life in Petersburg is a singu-

The ceilings are lofty, and the rooms finished in different kinds of natural wood. The great drawing-room is crowded with rare works of art, pictures and bric-a-brac, and contains a piano made especially by the Chickerings for Mahone's daughter, the case ornamented with designs in inlaid mother of pearl and silver. Upon the wall hangs the famous painting of the battle of the Crater, with Mahone leading his men to the rescue.

In the library across the broad hall is a bust of Mahone by a famous artist, and there are the swords that have been presented to him. But in this great presented to him. But in this great house there are no social functions. During a good share of the time the house is closed and cared for by servants. Mrs. Mahone and Otelia spend most of their time in Europe and Washington. Occasionally Mrs. Mahone returns to throw open the house and see that everything is in good condition. that everything is in good condition but so far as social intercourse between Mahone mansion and the other the Malione mansion and the other Petersburg residences is concerned, the house might as well be in Washington. Two-thirds of the time Mahone and son Butler are alone in the house, and for manyyears it has really been a political headquarters.

Gen. Mahone is a night hawk. He goes to bed at daylight, and his breaktast hour is 3 o'clock in the afternoon, or 'evening.' as they call the day in the South after 12 o'clock, noon.

At about 2 o'clock Mahone makes his first appearance. He greets his guests, who, meanwhile, have had all the privileges that Mahone would claim in his own house. He walks about the lawn to let the wind blow through his luxuriant whiskers, and at 3 all gather around the long table in the handsome dining-room.

I have seen about that hospitable board Sherman, McKinley, Burrows, Perkins of Kansas, Plumb, Cheadle, John Wise, Brady and se on for quality and quantity.

John Wise, Brady and so on for quality and quantity.

Mahone's meal consists principally of two or three corn pones, bearing the impression of the "mammy" cook's fingera upon them, made when she patted them into shape, and cup after cup of strong tea. This meal generally lasts two hours, and then an adjournment is had to the library, and cigars are distributed. Mahone imports his own cigars, and they are the longest biggest and strongest type of the "Perfectos." He smokes one of these down to a stump, chews the stump till there is no more nicotine left in it, and then lights another. He continues this performance all night. Senator Sherman thinks he is a smoker and indiges in a little white, cabbage-leaf cigar. little white, cabbage-leaf cigar.

I saw him watch with much amuse ment Mr. Sherman's first and only ex ment Mr. Sherman's first and only ex-perience with one of Mahone's cigars. It was in the library after dinner. Mr. Sherman accepted a cigar from the profiered box, though he eyed it suspiciously. After a dozen puns at it, he excused himself and left the room. I followed him out upon the veranda and saw him throw the cigar out upon the lawn.

"Good gracious," said he, "how can a "Good gracious," said he, "how can a man smoke cigars like that and live!"

Gen. Mahone has been celebrated to a great extent by the Democratic papers as an "old man awfully," as a sort of feather-weight, raw-head and bloodybones, until he has acquired a reputation as a dreadfully "bad man."

The fact is that while Mahone is a "bad man" to his enemies, with his story teiling there never comes a word or a suggestion that could not be made in the presence of ladies. In this he differs from a good many public men. Upon the subject of the war and his part and experience in it, he will not talk except to a trusted few. In general it is a matter he will not speak of at all.

The fact is that while Manone is a "bad man" to his enemies, with his friends he is one of the most genial, companionable and delightful men imaginable.

One morning about 4 o'clock, as I was One morning about 4 o'clock, as I was sleeping in an upper chamber in his house, he shook me gently by the shoulder and awakened me.

"I want to talk to you for a little while," said he, "can you stand it?" He perched himself, gnome-like, upon the foot of the bed, the light of his cigar faming up and dying as he puffed at it, reminding me of the revolving lamps of a lighthouse, and the sun had been shining into the windows a long time shining into the windows a long time before he departed for his own chamber.

What he talked about was the inside war history of the Confederacy, and what a story it was.

I think after the first five minutes he lost all thought of me. He was simply human in his desire to speak of things that he forbade his tongue in public, but that were near his heart and kept hack in the conversed and analyst.

ment at Mahsne's is the broad, rear veranda, or "gallery," as it is universally called in the South, the rose garden, the big "scoop" rocking-chairs and the mint juleps.

This is an alluring combination, as many can testify.

The mint julep is the princess royal of all refreshing and cooling concoctions when it comes from the hand of such an artist as "John." As a rule, the Northern julep is a base imitation the Northern julep is a base imitation and bears about the same relation to the and bears about the same relation to the genuine that a country painter's "graining" does to old oak.

John builds up a mint julep with as much loving care and attention as he would devote to his own baby. He lays the varying stratas of pineapple, granulated sugar, cracked ice and orange and lemon to the top of the great lemonade tumbler. Over it all he sheds a thimble full of brandy that has mellowed for years in Mahone's cellar, and a teaspoonful of old Santa Cruz.

He thrusts into the ice two or three sprigs of mint carefully selected from the mint bed that may always be found in connection with the home of a Virginia gentleman. Then he pushes a ginia gentleman. Then he pushes a straw down to the bottom of the glass straw down to the bottom of the glass so that when you pull at it you gather the luxurious combination of brandy, Santa Cruz, orange, lemon, pineapple, sugar and ice, while under your nose are the fragrant leaves of the mint, and the air about you is laden with the perfumes from Mrs. Mahone's wonderful rose garden, and the haunting fraful rose garden, and the haunting fra-grance of the magnolias.

The mint julep on the rear veranda is Mahone's only indulgence in the drinking way, and it is a very mild one so far as alcohol is concerned.

Mahone is not much of a reader, though his library is well stored with rare and valuable books. He deals with rare and valuable books. He deals with today and living men and events, and he is not largely in sympathy with those "literary fellers," except as they deal with current events political and Southern questions and problems.

In this yard the scene is always remarkable. Two or three hundred negroes walk about, some are making stump speeches on politics, some are exhorting and praying and the noise they make can be heard a long distance away.

One day Gen. Mahone sat in his carriage with John Sherman just outside of the fence, and after watching the scene and listening to the hubbub for some time, he remarked: "It reminds me of one of those society receptions up in Washington." FRED D. Musser.

for California products:
"The use of fruit is still attended with The use of fruit is still attended with much unnecessary distrust. All prime California, however, has met prompt sale. The market closes looking better for large supplies. E. R. Hutchins, vice-president of the California Fruit Transportation Company, arrived here on the steamer Majestic from Liverpool last Wednesday. From personal observation be predicts a most encouraging future for steamer Majestic from Liverpool last Wednesday. From personal observation he predicts a most encouraging future for California fruits there. He has obtained a valuable equipment of information about special measures of packing, the proper time of competition and attractive varieties from the most experienced traders in London and Liverpool. He says the late auctions were conducted with honesty for all concerned, and that Pacific fruit brought more money—weight for weight—than French.

"Canned Fruits-Present wants are easily fled from supplies here. There are 110,-00 cases yet to arrive by sail, so large 000 cases yet to arrive by sail, so large Jouyers are not anxious about later replensishments. All packs of firm unpeeled peaches are very salable at 14½ to 16c.

This would leave a surplus of $22,000 after paying the interest of 5 per cent. per month. This surplus would meet all expenses for the full term; salary of superintendent taxes, expenses attending sales and any extra improvements that the trusters might deem necessary. This is not a land distribution, but an investment of money with return of money and interest. Building associations and savings banks are all founded on real estate security and pay from 5 to 8 per cent. per year. Here you have not only the best real state sectribut your investment also earns 5 per cent. per month, and at the same time you own your own proportion of the land, 4 acres to each share, until it is sold by your own trustees and then you have your division of profits.
